Case Interviewing Workshop by CMC Alum

Friday, February 3

1:00-3:30 pm

CMC - Kravis Center 164

Attention Juniors! If you are applying for consulting internships this semester, don't miss out on a great opportunity to practice cases and receive feedback from a CMC alum and former consultant. Richard Chino '90, spent three years in management consulting after graduating from CMC and received his MBA from Northwestern University. He returned to consulting at a firm that is now owned by Ernst & Young and left years later to work for a high tech company that invented Sponsored Search and went public. This workshop will give an overview of the different approaches to case interviews and will allow you to practice yourself and receive feedback.

Beyond Strategy Consulting: What Other Types of Consulting Exist?

Tuesday, February 7 @ 7 pm
CMC - Founders Room, Bauer Center North

The world of consulting is a very diverse field. There are numerous types of consulting beyond strategy consulting firms like McKinsey, Bain, Boston Consulting Group and Deloitte that most students are familiar with. So we bring four professionals at top consulting firms that are doing other types of consulting. Come with lots of questions and expand your horizon.

- Nazneen Nathani ('01) - Accenture (Technology Consulting)
- Courtney Cronin ('09) - AonHewitt (Health & Benefits Consulting)
- Justin Regus ('99) - Rothstein Kass (Litigation Consulting)
- John Borneman - Semler Brossy (Executive Compensation Consulting)

Tech Talk by Dropbox

Friday, February 10 from 1:00-5:00 p.m. and Saturday, February 11 from 9:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.
CMC - Roberts North 12

Training The Street provides instruction in financial modeling and valuation training for finance professionals. Primarily serving Wall Street firms and business schools, Training The Street's goal is to demonstrate the real-world application of finance theory with hands-on instruction and practical examples. Over the past decade, Training The Street has become the training standard for Wall Street firms as well as undergraduate and graduate students looking for jobs in finance.

Since numerous firms on Wall Street utilize Training The Street to train their employees, this workshop will provide you with the opportunity to differentiate yourself as you pursue a job in the world of finance. In addition to its strong reputation in the financial community, Training The Street will provide you with a two-day workshop that will serve as a great way to enhance your resume.

Since advanced finance concepts will be discussed during the workshop, please only register if you have completed or are enrolled in Economics 134 (Corporate Finance). Please also note that workshop participants are expected to attend the Friday and Saturday sessions. Please do not register if you are unable to attend both days of the workshop. For questions regarding this workshop, please contact Brian Dennis at bdennis@cmc.edu.
